

Binh Thuan Province is in the southern coast of Vietnam. The capital of Binh Thuan Province is the city of Phan Thiet, 150km south of Phan Rang – Thap Cham and 200km north-east of Ho Chi Minh City.

Mui Ne Fishing Village, Binh Thuan, Vietnam

Binh Thuan Province along with Ninh Thuan Province is the most arid region of Vietnam with the average rainfall of 1,024mm per annum (some areas in the region receives less than 500mm of rainfall per year), with average humidity of 79% and with average temperate of 27 Degrees Celsius. There are two seasons in Binh Thuan Province: the rainy season is from May through October and the dry season is from November through April.

The desert at Binh Thuan Province, Vietnam

Binh Thuan Province is famous for the trip of pristine sand beaches of Phan Thiet and Mui Ne, for the stunning sand dunes and for the challenging desert which stretches over a hundred kilometers to Ninh Thuan Province. The Cape of Mui Ne, 20km from Phan Thiet City, is characterized with luxury resorts, palm forests and sunshine all year round.

Road through the desert of Binh Thuan

There are numerous activities for the travellers to Phan Thiet and Mui Ne . Beside water sports like scuba-diving, para-sailings, kite-boarding, wind-surfing..., there are opportunities to cycle through the fishing villages around Phan Thiet and Mui Ne. For those that yearn for more adventurous activities, you can hire a jeep and go safaris in the desert.

Phan Thiet Beach